REINVENTING A BELGIAN LEGEND

Celebrate the best of luxury lifestyle in the sublime surroundings of an iconic Belgian castle, totally reinvented for the 21st century. Gregoir has sympathetically transformed the historic 18th century Castle Diependael with an intuitive restoration project, designed to harmonize the best of heritage and modernity.

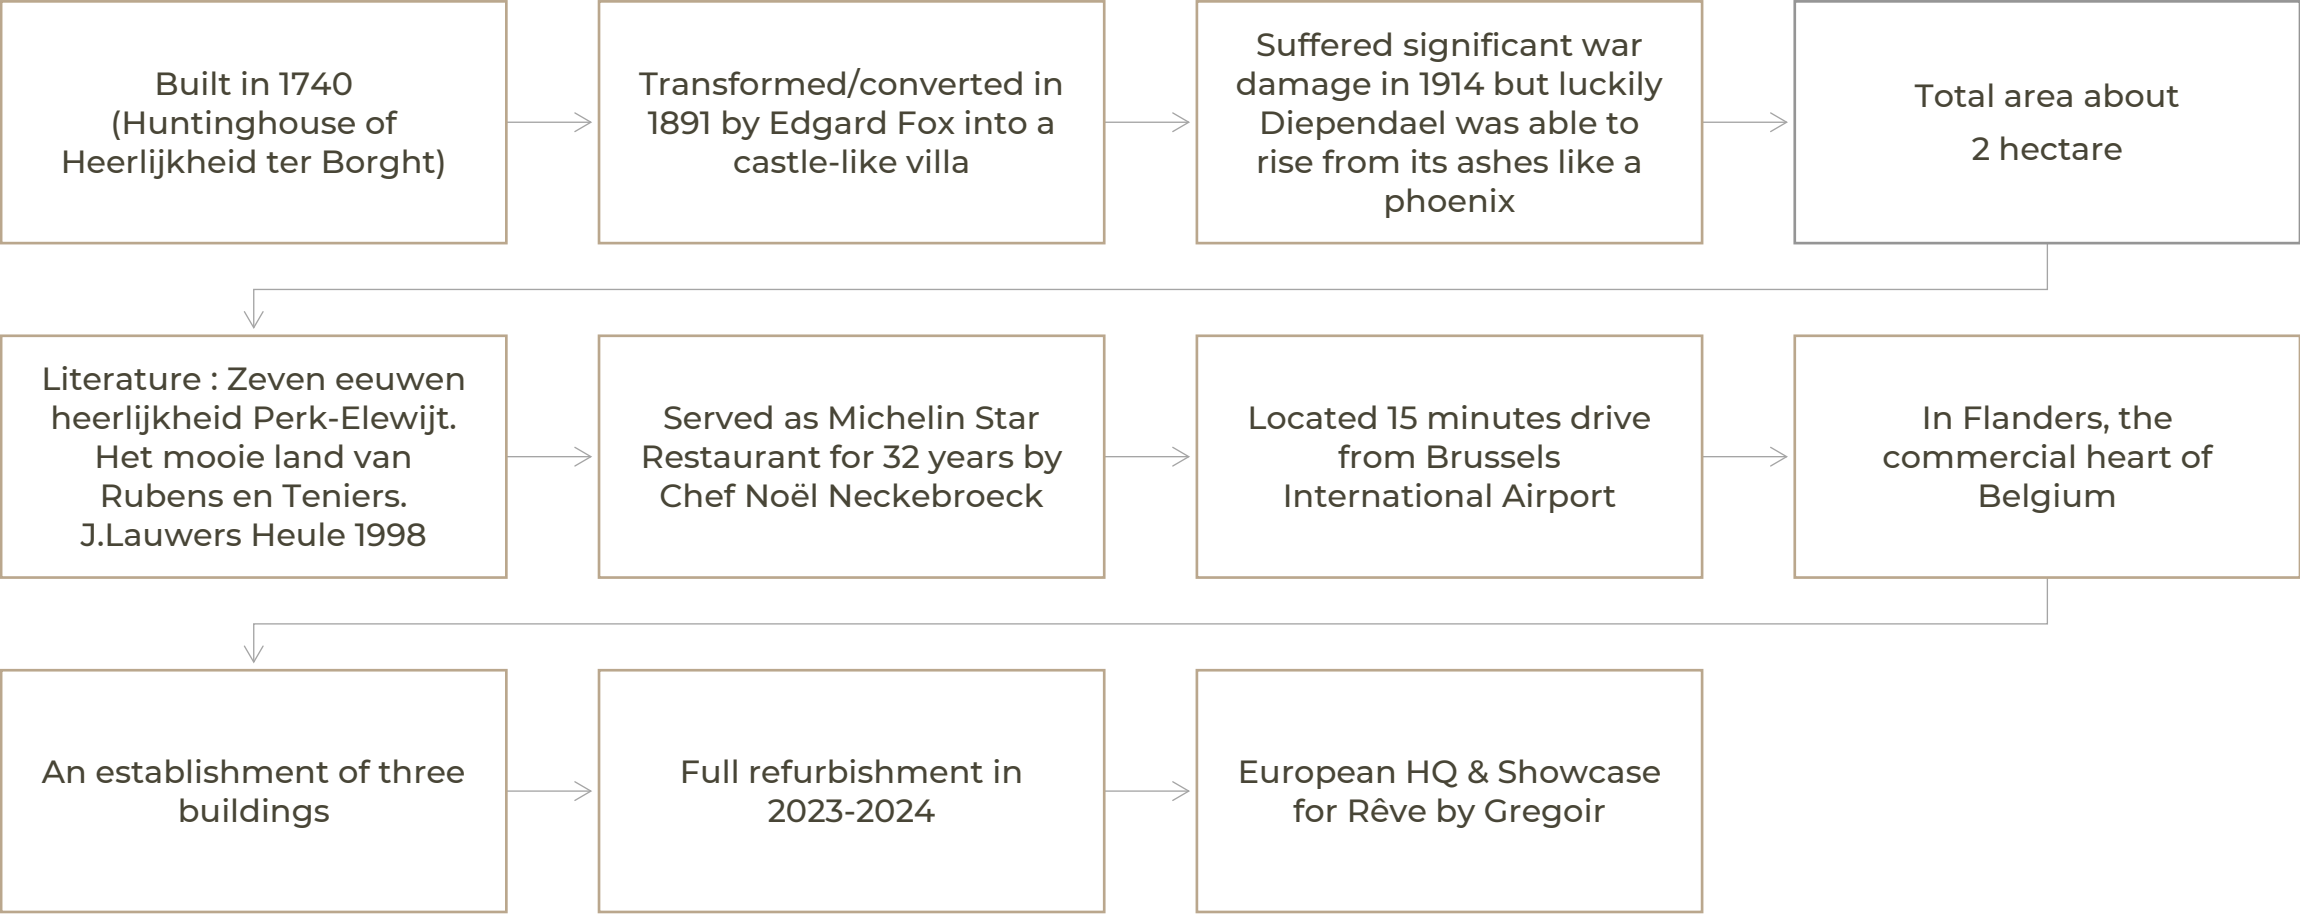

With an inviting, residential-meets-retail ambience, this beautiful Brussels landmark is now Gregoir's leading European showcase for CAMERICH's collection of highly desirable contemporary furniture. Plus, other hand-chosen, premium lifestyle brands and products, set against the stylish backdrop of the castle's skillfully renovated interiors.

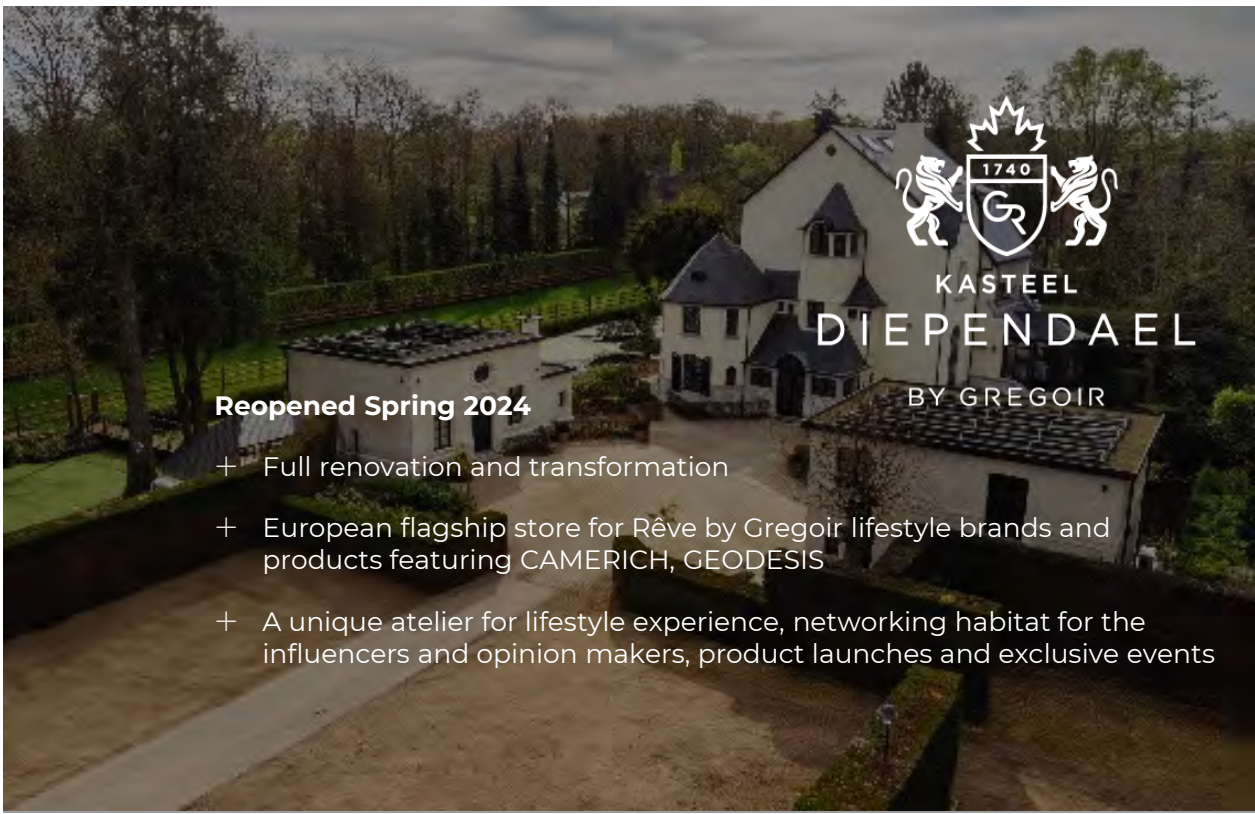

Nestled in Flanders - the heart of the city's commercial district - Castle Diependael has also been designed as a luxurious sanctuary of calm: a sought-after event destination offering carefully curated and immersive lifestyle experiences.

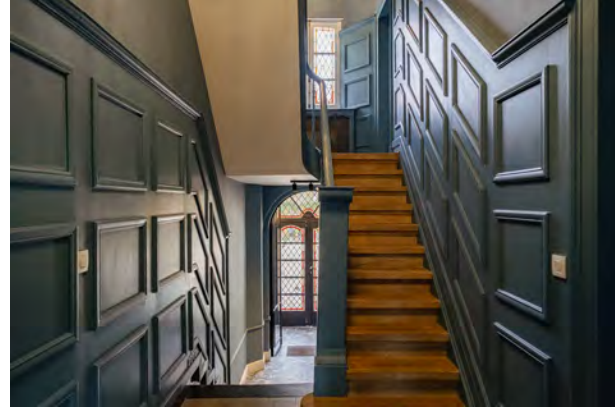

Originally built as hunting lodge by Heerlijkheid ter Borght in 1740, Diependael was upgraded by Edgard Fox in 1891 into an elegant estate, with three impressive properties, set in 2 hectares of beautiful water gardens. The castle suffered substantial war damage in 1914, but rose from the ashes to become the renowned home of Chef Noël Neckebroeck's Michelin-starred restaurant for 32 years.

Now spectacularly rising again in elegant Gregoir style, as the beacon of Rêve by Gregoir brand, Castle Diependael set for a glittering new future as the European Capital's most desirable networking salon for leading influencers and opinion makers.
